Re: Regional Energy Infrastructure Study (REIS)

Dear Sir or Madam:

I have two specific comments on the study:

1. The South Bay Power Plant should be torn down and replaced by a plant in a more appropriate location. South San Diego Bay is a valuable and unique resource for the region. Several different municipalities and agencies are currently involved in long-term planning to create a bayfront that will be a major positive for both local and regional interests. There is no reason why such a resource should be wasted and harmed by keeping the power plant there.

2. For similar reasons, the power lines along the east side of the south bay should be undergrounded. They are a visual, environmental, and health blight upon what is a unique and sensitive area.

Sincerely,
